

REGULATIONS

On holding the II International Internet Olympiad “International Peace and Trust – the Foundation of Economic Development” among students of higher education institutions in Turkmenistan and abroad, on the occasion of the 31st anniversary of the permanent neutrality of Turkmenistan in the year “Independent, Permanently Neutral Turkmenistan – Homeland of Purposeful Winged Steeds”

I. Significance of the Olympiad

Under the wise leadership of our esteemed President, our people’s longstanding traditions of goodwill, peacefulness and humanity form the foundation of our state’s principles of friendship and fraternity. The achievements of eternally neutral Turkmenistan in foreign policy, as well as its peaceful approach to developing international cooperation and finding constructive solutions to issues of global development, receive broad support from the international community.

At sessions of the United Nations General Assembly, historic resolutions are adopted unanimously at the initiative of Turkmenistan. The principles of ensuring peace and mutual trust at the international level help strengthen peace and trust in multilateral relations between states. In particular, these principles are important for uniting efforts to achieve sustainable economic development through political dialogue, mutual understanding and international cooperation.

As the national economy develops, expanding and strengthening economic relations with foreign countries remains an important priority. Cooperation with other countries in all areas, including science and education, and the exchange of ideas in these fields contribute to the development of well-rounded, highly qualified specialists and patriotic young people.

Regular Olympiads in economics among students of higher education institutions in Turkmenistan and leading universities abroad help develop economic thinking, consolidate Turkmenistan’s achievements in digital education and improve young people’s ability to use innovative technologies.

In accordance with the Concept for the Development of the Digital Education System in Turkmenistan, and with the aim of achieving strong educational outcomes and continuously improving educational quality, holding the II International Internet Olympiad “International Peace and Trust – the Foundation of Economic Development” among students of higher education institutions in Turkmenistan and abroad will contribute to developing talented young people who can effectively use innovative technologies and independently solve economic problems as the national economy develops sustainably.

II. Purpose of the Olympiad
